NO DANCING AT GOV. NEFF INAUGURATION IS LATEST ANNOUNCEMENT FROM AUSTIN

Governor Neff Expects to Announce His Appointments In Two Weeks After Trip to Mexico—Is Now In Laredo.

(By Associated Press)

Austin, Nov. 24.—There will be no dancing and no inaugural ball in connection with the inauguration of Pat M. Neff, governor of Texas, according to a decision of the committee appointed to arrange the ceremonies welcoming the new governor in January.

GOVERNOR WILL SOON NAME MEN.

Dallas, Texas, Nov. 24.—In order that he may be able to appoint the best possible men to all offices Pat M. Neff, governor-elect, said in Dallas Tuesday that since his election he has given his time entirely to this phase of work and that he has not had time to consider any legislative subjects. "Upon my return from a two weeks' visit to Mexico, beginning Friday, as a guest of the Laredo Chamber of Commerce, I expect to be able to announce the principal officers who will serve under the next administration," Mr. Neff said. "Since the election I have received a daily average of more than 100 letters of application for positions from all parts of the state, and in addition I have talked daily with ten to twelve persons from outside of Waco. All letters have been read personally by me. Reports coming from Waco that Dwight L. Lewelling of Dallas has been selected for assistant attorney general are erroneous. Mr. Lewelling has never made application for this or any other office under my administration." Mr. Neff had nothing to say as to whether he will sanction an inaugural ball when he takes office on Jan. 15. It has been reported that Mr. Neff does not favor the inaugural ball. Mr. Neff held conferences with several Dallas men Tuesday morning preceding the meeting of the trustees of Baylor University.

A RAT CONTEST FOR BOY SCOUTS

D. A. Huddleston, Boy Scout Executive of Corpus Christi, has sent a challenge to other Boy Scouts of other cities to enter a rat contest, the number of rats killed to be based on the human population of the respective cities. All boy scouts of the city to join in the contest, irrespective of enrollment. Only rats killed by scout members to be counted and ends of tails to be submitted to reputable committee or persons. Contest to start Dec. 15 and to last ten days. Local business men and other agencies to be allowed all means of encouragement.

The contest should be only a feature of a country-wide campaign to continue for a longer period and having for its object the extermination of all rats as far as possible. For further information and particulars may be obtained from the Extension Service A. & M. College.

VENIZELLOS IS SAID TO BE DESPONDENT OVER THE GREEKS

(By Associated Press)
Paris, Nov. 25.—Former Premier Venizelos of Greece is despondent over his defeat at the polls on November 14 and may retire permanently from politics. In any event, he will await definition by the powers of their attitude toward Greece, said Sophocles Venizelos, son of the former premier, to Paris correspondents at Nice this morning.

"My father is disgusted and is despondent," said the young man. "He ponders for hours at a time without saying a word. I do not know what his intentions are, but for the present he is too disgusted with everything to desire to enter politics again. So far as he is concerned, Greece can have the fate she deserves. He will want to know, first of all, what are the views and intentions of the allies toward Greece before he decides whether to resume his political work."

THE COAL MINERS ACCEPTED TERMS

(By Associated Press)
Eagle Pass, Texas, Nov. 25.—The strike of coal miners in the State of Coahuila, Mexico, ended today when the strikers returned to work upon the Mexican government terms according to reports received here. The terms the strikers accepted included wage increase of twenty per cent. The strikers numbering about eleven thousand quit work on October 11, when their demands of one hundred per cent wage advance was refused. The Mexican government intervened in the strike upon the ground of injuring Mexican industries. Two weeks ago the strikers seized several mines in the Monclova district and announced properties would be operated by workers. Federal troops were sent into the district and subsequently mines were returned to their owners.

BOARD OF CONTROL CLAIMS A SAVING

(By Associated Press)
Austin, Texas, Nov. 25.—The Texas Board of Control recently saved approximately $1,000,000 by refraining from making a year's contract for groceries and dry goods for the state eleemosynary institutions during the unsettled condition of the markets at that time, according to A. R. Johnson, a member of the board.

Despite the fact that buying these supplies under a yearly contract would have reduced greatly the work of the board, Mr. Johnson said that because of the likelihood of prices declining it was decided to make only ninety-day contracts. The wisdom of this course, he said, has been vindicated by the fact that many articles already have declined fifty per cent in price since the beginning of this fiscal year, September 1.

The fall has been so rapid since the last ninety-day contracts, which expire at the end of this month, were made that the board has decided to make no contracts for the next ninety days, according to Mr. Johnson, who added that the board will purchase supplies as they are needed in the open market in as small quantities as possible in order to get the full benefit of further declines.

As an illustration of the tumble prices have taken, Mr. Johnson said that under the last contract the state paid 21.7 cents a pound for sugar which now may be bought for 11 cents; flour which then brought $14.50 is now $11.30; meat at that time was $4.50 per cwt. but now is only $2.30. Dry goods, he added, have declined approximately fifty percent.

The board acts as purchasing agent for sixteen state eleemosynary institutions, and approximately $2,000,000 was provided this year for the purchase of dry goods and groceries.

This amount, said Mr. Johnson, would have been woefully insufficient had contracts been made at prices prevailing at the beginning of this fiscal year.

MANY MEXICANS ARE ON BORDER

(By Associated Press)
Brownsville, Texas, Nov. 25.—The reported presence of Mexicans along the lower border on the American side of several former Carranza military commanders, including Generals Lucio Blanco and Alfredo Ricaut, and their possible connection with the sortie into Mexico Monday of a small band of supposed Mexican rebels, is causing concern among military officials at Matamoros, opposite Brownsville, it was learned today. Troops sent in pursuit of the band, which raided Ramirez Monday, had not captured any of the band up to early today, it was announced in Matamoros.

No announcement has been made of the result of the election in Tamaulipas two weeks ago in which Luiz Cabellero was opposed for Governor of the State by Cesar Lopez de Lara. Both sides claim victory. In some quarters the belief was expressed today that followers of the defeated candidate might align themselves with any organized movement against the Federal Government.

It has been known for some time that General Blanco was living near Cameron, Texas, and that General Ricaut was staying on a ranch north of Brownsville. So far as known, however, neither has been unduly active in Mexican affairs.

METHODISTS AGAINST SUNDAY TRAINS

(By Associated Press)
Rocky Mount, N. C., Nov. 25.—The North Carolina Methodist Conference unanimously indorsed a national Sabbath law to be passed by Congress to stop all Sunday trains, Sunday newspapers, Sunday mails and postoffice, and to secure Sunday as a rest day for every Federal and interstate employee.

The same action has been taken by almost all of the great Southern Methodist conferences and by other bodies. The movement, begun in the Tennessee Conference in 1919, is gaining great headway.

The Rev. R. L. Davis, secretary of the North Carolina Anti-Saloon League, read the resolution of indorsement. Noah W. Cooper of Nashville spoke before the conference, stating that unless this law was passed and observed our country in thirty years would be where Europe is today.

YEAR'S PROFITS BUY PAIR SOX

AGGIES-LONGHORN BATTLE NOW ON FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

(By Associated Press)
Austin, Nov. 25.—Eighteen thousand football fans are on toes awaiting the first whistle of the Longhorn-Aggies contest for the Southwestern championship. Attendance records for a single sport event in Texas is believed to be smashed by today's mammoth crowd. The last minute news from both football camps is to the effect that squads are in fine condition for the contest.

ARKANSAS MAY HAVE A CHANCE

(By Associated Press)
Houston, Nov. 25.—Arkansas University clashed with Rice Institute for Southwestern contest is second in importance only to the game between Texas University and Texas Aggies. Austin, should Arkansas win will stand par with the winner of the Austin game. In the event a post season game will be necessary to settle the Southwestern championship.

TURKEY TO EAT NOT TO FIGHT

Cuero, Texas, Nov. 25.—The story of the fight in the White House yard between the Texas and Kentucky turkeys sent to the president for his Thanksgiving spread, in which fray the Texas turkey came off second best, has caused no little bit of protest and explanation in Cuero turkey circles. Bird lovers here explain that there are turkeys and turkeys, just as there are fat porkers and wiry razorback hogs. Eating turkeys are vastly different in battling ability from those of leaner craws and trimmer drumsticks, they point out.

The turkey sent to President Wilson from the turkey trot was nut-fed, had been given the tender care of the fattening pen, and weighed thirty-eight pounds. It was selected for the quality and quantity of its tenderness, connoisseurs of what the Thanksgiving piece de resistance should be explain. As to the Kentucky gobbler's victory, they declare it wasn't such that a real fighter would crow about.

And that isn't all. Turkey enthusiasts here have their blood up. They have issued a challenge to Kentucky breeders of the national feather wearer. If its fight and not food the Kentucky turkey raisers want, Cuero will send a gobbler amply able to bring the honors home to Texas, they declare.

THANKSGIVING DAY OBSERVED IN BRYAN

Thanksgiving was celebrated in Bryan today with a union Thanksgiving service of all the churches, under the direction of the Pastor's Association at the First Methodist church at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Rev. W. N. Sholl, pastor of the Presbyterian church preached the sermon. Thanksgiving, the feast of the harvest has a different meaning for every individual; to some it means a good time and good things to eat and to others it is a realization of something higher and finer, something more altruistic, an acknowledgment of a power higher than man's form whom all blessings come. Others select a more enthusiastic manner of proclaiming the advent of the harvest festival, and games, and parties are their ways of celebrating. Bryan people have all celebrated today each to his liking.

A YOUNG GIRL'S ASSAILANT TRIED

(By Associated Press)
Fort Worth, Nov. 25.—At 10:30 this morning the jury which tried Robert Lowe, a nineteen-year-old negro for criminal assault on a young girl at Arlington November 1st is still unable to agree, reported Judge Mosby and is hopelessly hung, however Judge Mosby requested to discharge the jurors. Lowe first confessed to the assault then repudiated it.

A. W. Kinnard, Jno. Kosarek and a number of farmers from Brazos county are leaving tonight for San Antonio to be present at a meeting of the United Cotton Growers association in conjunction with representatives of the Federal Farm Bureau.

SEVERAL KINDS OF OIL EXCITEMENT IS REPORTED AT MEXIA AND GROESBECK

Many Angles to the Oil Game and There is Much Excitement Over Mexia-Groesbeck Field In Limestone County.

Mexia, Texas, Nov. 25.—All roads lead to Mexia. Rich man, poor man, beggar man, thief, they are all arriving here by train, by automobile, by airplane, in wagons or on foot. A steel derrick, daubed with new found oil, which towers on a sloping hill beyond the town, is their Mecca. Lads with high boots, blue shirts and mackinaw coats are coming in on every train. They are the drillers and "roughnecks" from the West Texas fields attracted by the latest boom in wealth. Fur coated and diamond-ed oil operators, who have made their pile but are on the alert for more, dash through the crowded streets in dust stained touring cars on the way to grab choice leases about the country side. From Dallas, Tulsa, Fort Worth, Wichita Falls, they respond to the lure of the gusher.

OIL MAD MEXIA IS ON THE RAMPAPE.

Since the Humphreys Petroleum Company well reached the sand and spurted over its derrick Saturday evening, Mexia has gone plumb oil mad. In forty-eight hours the population of the little town has jumped from 4,000 to 6,000 people, so it is estimated. Maps in hand, oil men are milling around on the sidewalks, in the streets and in the limited space of the hotel lobbies, trading in oil properties, which seem to jump by the hundreds of dollars almost hourly. Hotels are accommodating visitors half a dozen to a room. Private homes have opened to bedless boomers. Folks are sleeping on back porches and in bath tubs. Long lines of hungry oil men line up at meal times, awaiting seats at the counters of wholly inadequate restaurants, the owners of which have telephoned frantically to distant wholesale houses for additional supplies.

Business other than oil business seems entirely suspended. At the hotels you ask for a room and they offer you a lease. At the drug store the soda clerk tries to sell oil acreage along with a bottle of pop. "Forty acres at $200 per. Only six miles from the well." If you buy the lease the chances are that you can sell it at a profit a couple of hours later. Prudent Mexians let no grass grow under their feet, once the well came in, and many of them have already banked tidy sums on leases which they grabbed on the ground floor.

The well which causes all this excitement is known as the Humphreys well and is located on a ridge of rising ground two and a half miles west of Mexia on the Rodgers property. Saturday evening, while the crew was pulling casing, oil spurted fifty feet over the derrick. The drill is eight inches in the Woodbine sand at 3,165 feet. So great was the force of the gusher that the big steel derrick was warped out of plumb. Repairs are hurriedly being made and E. A. Humphreys, president of the company owning the well, says that he will drill deeper Thursday morning and see just what the hole will do. The drilling in is also being delayed for the arrival of Ira B. Humphreys, a son of the president, who is at present in the clouds en route from Denver, Colo., to Mexia. On receiving a wire announcing the oil strike he started for Texas at once in his airplane.

E. A. Humphreys is a wealthy oil man of Denver, Colo. He has operated largely in Texas and the Mexia well is the sixth wildcat which he has brought in during his career. "I cannot predict what the well will do," said E. A. Humphreys. "We had been working on it for a year, and Saturday, with the tools six or eight inches in the sand, she came in suddenly, spouting fifty feet over the derrick. We are repairing the derrick and will drill in as soon as possible. This should be Wednesday morning. Then we will see what happens." Mr. Humphreys says that Tuesday he will call a meeting and form a $2,000,000 oil company with some of his holdings. He has several thousand acres near the well under lease.

FARMERS ARE TRADING IN OIL LEASES.

Lease values at Mexia continue to shoot upward. Property leased at $10 or $100 an acre a week ago now brings $200 or $1,000, according to its proximity to the well. Lease trading is not merely brisk, it is wild. Farmers are selling their produce and buying acreage with the money. One Freestone county farmer drove into Mexia Monday, unaware of the oil boom. He left his load of sweet potatoes standing in the street without seeking a buyer and started into the oil business. Other farmers have sold their cotton and jumped into the game. The Humphreys well is on a long ridge, the strata of which geologists have said is a continuation from the Ranger field. Companies are being formed and individuals are making plans to drill scores of wells in this section immediately.

DETAILS OF THE OPERATIONS AT MEXIA.

Mexia, Texas, Nov. 25.—Owing to the foundation under the large steel derrick having given away under the extremely heavy pressure while drawing the large casing Tuesday, officials of the Humphreys Petroleum Co. say it will be several days before the new well can be drilled in and something more definite in the way of production determined. General Manager John B. Means stated Wednesday morning that prospects were becoming brighter and brighter for a big well, and owing to the very favorable location and other features, Mexia is destined to see an oil boom equal to that experienced at Casper, Wyo., when his company brought in a wild cat well there several years ago. The Casper pool proved to be one of the biggest in the country and started out exactly as this discovery here. There is really nothing new to report from the well today. Oil was standing this morning almost to the top of the ground and a blow out is expected momentarily. The thickness of the sand in which the oil was discovered will be the determining factor in what exists in the way of an oil pool for Mexia. This information is awaited with much interest.

Mr. Means says his company has nothing to conceal, nothing to sell and nothing to put over. They are here to play the oil game on the square. Their conduct so far has been of this nature and we anticipate a prosperous field after operations have begun in earnest. Reports of other companies being formed and drilling operations to begin soon have come to our ears, but we have not ascertained any particulars worthy of announcement. The Mexia Oil & Gas Co. retain possibly the most valuable holdings outside of the Humphreys Petroleum Company, and what this company does in the near future will be of much interest to the public as there are a large number of shareholders in this original oil and gas corporation.

BOARD OF CONTROL CLAIMS A SAVING

(By Associated Press)
Austin, Texas, Nov. 25.—The Texas Board of Control recently saved approximately $1,000,000 by refraining from making a year's contract for groceries and dry goods for the state eleemosynary institutions during the unsettled condition of the markets at that time, according to A. R. Johnson, a member of the board.

Despite the fact that buying these supplies under a yearly contract would have reduced greatly the work of the board, Mr. Johnson said that because of the likelihood of prices declining it was decided to make only ninety-day contracts. The wisdom of this course, he said, has been vindicated by the fact that many articles already have declined fifty per cent in price since the beginning of this fiscal year, September 1.

The fall has been so rapid since the last ninety-day contracts, which expire at the end of this month, were made that the board has decided to make no contracts for the next ninety days, according to Mr. Johnson, who added that the board will purchase supplies as they are needed in the open market in as small quantities as possible in order to get the full benefit of further declines.

As an illustration of the tumble prices have taken, Mr. Johnson said that under the last contract the state paid 21.7 cents a pound for sugar which now may be bought for 11 cents; flour which then brought $14.50 is now $11.50; meal at that time was $4.50 per cwt. but now is only $2.30. Dry goods, he added, have declined approximately fifty percent.

The board acts as purchasing agent for sixteen state eleemosynary institutions, and approximately $2,000,000 was provided this year for the purchase of dry goods and groceries. This amount, said Mr. Johnson, would have been woefully insufficient had contracts been made at prices prevailing at the beginning of this fiscal year.

YEAR'S PROFITS BUY PAIR SOX

AGGIES-LONGHORN BATTLE NOW ON FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

(By Associated Press)
Austin, Nov. 25.—Eighteen thousand football fans are on toes awaiting the first whistle of the Longhorn-Aggies contest for the Southwestern championship. Attendance records for a single sport event in Texas is believed to be smashed by today's mammoth crowd. The last minute news from both football camps is to the effect that squads are in fine condition for the contest.

ARKANSAS MAY HAVE A CHANGE

(By Associated Press)
Houston, Nov. 25.—Arkansas University clashed with Rice Institute for Southwestern contest is second in importance only to the game between Texas University and Texas Aggies. Austin, should Arkansas win will stand par with the winner of the Austin game. In the event a post season game will be necessary to settle the Southwestern championship.

TURKEY TO EAT NOT TO FIGHT

Cuero, Texas, Nov. 25.—The story of the fight in the White House yard between the Texas and Kentucky turkeys sent to the president for his Thanksgiving spread, in which fray the Texas turkey came off second best, has caused no little bit of protest and explanation in Cuero turkey circles. Bird lovers here explain that there are turkeys and turkeys, just as there are fat porkers and wiry razorback hogs. Eating turkeys are vastly different in battling ability from those of leaner crows and trimmer drumsticks, they point out.

The turkey sent to President Wilson from the turkey trot was nut-fed, had been given the tender care of the fattening pen, and weighed thirty-eight pounds. It was selected for the quality and quantity of its tenderness, connoisseurs of what the Thanksgiving piece de resistance should be explain. As to the Kentucky gobbler's victory, they declare it wasn't such that a real fighter would crow about.

And that isn't all. Turkey enthusiasts here have their blood up. They have issued a challenge to Kentucky breeders of the national feather wearer. If its fight and not food the Kentucky turkey raisers want, Cuero will send a gobbler amply able to bring the honors home to Texas, they declare.

THANKSGIVING DAY OBSERVED IN BRYAN

Thanksgiving was celebrated in Bryan today with a union Thanksgiving service of all the churches, under the direction of the Pastor's Association at the First Methodist church at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Rev. W. N. Sholl, pastor of the Presbyterian church preached the sermon. Thanksgiving, the feast of the harvest has a different meaning for every individual; to some it means a good time and good things to eat and to others it is a realization of something higher and finer, something more altruistic, an acknowledgment of a power higher than man's form whom all blessings come. Others select a more enthusiastic manner of proclaiming the advent of the harvest festival, and games, and parties are their ways of celebrating. Bryan people have all celebrated today each to his liking.

A YOUNG GIRL'S ASSAILANT TRIED

(By Associated Press)
Fort Worth, Nov. 25.—At 10:30 this morning the jury which tried Robert Lowe, a nineteen-year-old negro for criminal assault on a young girl at Arlington November 1st is still unable to agree, reported Judge Mosby and is hopelessly hung, however Judge Mosby requested to discharge the jurors. Lowe first confessed to the assault then repudiated it.

SEVERAL KINDS OF OIL EXCITEMENT IS REPORTED AT MEXIA AND GROESBECK

Many Angles to the Oil Game and There is Much Excitement Over Mexia-Groesbeck Field In Limestone County.

Mexia, Texas, Nov. 25.—All roads lead to Mexia. Rich man, poor man, beggar man, thief, they are all arriving here by train, by automobile, by airplane, in wagons or on foot. A steel derrick, daubed with new found oil, which towers on a sloping hill beyond the town, is their Mecca. Lads with high boots, blue shirts and mackinaw coats are coming in on every train. They are the drillers and "roughnecks" from the West Texas fields attracted by the latest boom in wealth. Fur coated and diamonded oil operators, who have made their pile but are on the alert for more, dash through the crowded streets in dust stained touring cars on the way to grab choice leases about the country side. From Dallas, Tulsa, Fort Worth, Wichita Falls, they respond to the lure of the gusher.

OIL MAD MEXIA IS ON THE RAMPAGE.
Since the Humphreys Petroleum Company well reached the sand and spurted over its derrick Saturday evening, Mexia has gone plumb oil mad. In forty-eight hours the population of the little town has jumped from 4,000 to 6,000 people, so it is estimated. Maps in hand, oil men are milling around on the sidewalks, in the streets and in the limited space of the hotel lobbies, trading in oil properties, which seem to jump by the hundreds of dollars almost hourly. Hotels are accommodating visitors half a dozen to a room. Private homes have opened to bedless boomers. Folks are sleeping on back porches and in bath tubs. Long lines of hungry oil men line up at meal times, awaiting seats at the counters of wholly inadequate restaurants, the owners of which have telephoned frantically to distant wholesale houses for additional supplies.

Business other than oil business seems entirely suspended. At the hotels you ask for a room and they offer you a lease. At the drug store the soda clerk tries to sell oil acreage along with a bottle of pop. "Forty acres at $200 per. Only six miles from the well." If you buy the lease the chances are that you can sell it at a profit a couple of hours later. Prudent Mexians let no grass grow under their feet, once the well came in, and many of them have already banked tidy sums on leases which they grabbed on the ground floor.

The well which causes all this excitement is known as the Humphreys well and is located on a ridge of rising ground two and a half miles west of Mexia on the Rodgers property. Saturday evening, while the crew was pulling casing, oil spurted fifty feet over the derrick. The drill is eight inches in the Woodbine sand at 3,165 feet. So great was the force of the gusher that the big steel derrick was warped out of plumb. Repairs are hurriedly being made and E. A. Humphreys, president of the company owning the well, says that he will drill deeper Thursday morning and see just what the hole will do. The drilling in is also being delayed for the arrival of Ira B. Humphreys, a son of the president, who is at present in the clouds en route from Denver, Colo., to Mexia. On receiving a wire announcing the oil strike he started for Texas at once in his airplane.

E. A. Humphreys is a wealthy oil man of Denver, Colo. He has operated largely in Texas and the Mexia well is the sixth wildcat which he has brought in during his career. "I cannot predict what the well will do," said E. A. Humphrey. We had been working on it for a year, and Saturday, with the tools six or eight inches in the sand, she came in suddenly, spurring fifty feet over the derrick. We are repairing the derrick and will drill in as soon as possible. This should be Wednesday morning. Then we will see what happens." Mr. Humphrey says that Tuesday he will call a meeting and form a $2,000,000 oil company with some of his holdings. He has several thousand acres near the well under lease.

FARMERS ARE TRADING IN OIL LEASES.
Lease values at Mexia continue to shoot upward. Property leased at $10 or $100 an acre a week ago now brings $200 or $1,000, according to its proximity to the well. Lease trading is not merely brisk, it is wild. Farmers are selling their produce and buying acreage with the money. One Freestone county farmer drove into Mexia Monday, unaware of the oil boom. He left his load of sweet potatoes standing in the street without seeking a buyer and started into the oil business. Other farmers have sold their cotton and jumped into the game. The Humphreys well is on a long ridge, the strata of which geologists have said is a continuation from the Ranger field. Companies are being formed and individuals are making plans to drill scores of wells in this section immediately.

DETAILS OF THE OPERATIONS AT MEXIA.
Mexia, Texas, Nov. 25.—Owing to the foundation under the large steel derrick having given away under the extremely heavy pressure while drawing the large casing Tuesday, officials of the Humphreys Petroleum Co. say it will be several days before the new well can be drilled in and something more definite in the way of production determined. General Manager John B. Means stated Wednesday morning that prospects were becoming brighter and brighter for a big well, and owing to the very favorable location and other features, Mexia is destined to see an oil boom equal to that experienced at Casper, Wyo., when his company brought in a wild cat well there several years ago. The Casper pool proved to be one of the biggest in the country and started out exactly as this discovery here. There is really nothing new to report from the well today. Oil was standing this morning almost to the top of the ground and a blow out is expected momentarily. The thickness of the sand in which the oil was discovered will be the determining factor in what exists in the way of an oil pool for Mexia. This information is awaited with much interest.

Mr. Means says his company has nothing to conceal, nothing to sell and nothing to put over. They are here to play the oil game on the square. Their conduct so far has been of this nature and we anticipate a prosperous field after operations have begun in earnest. Reports of other companies being formed and drilling operations to begin soon have come to our ears, but we have not ascertained any particulars worthy of announcement. The Mexia Oil & Gas Co. retain possibly the most valuable holdings outside of the Humphreys Petroleum Company, and what this company does in the near future will be of much interest to the public as there are a large number of shareholders in this original oil and gas corporation.

The country will never have more houses until they are built. Waiting will not build homes.

Since a number of Dallas concerns have cut down the number of employees the city is calling for more detectives and officers on account of the crime wave now prevailing in Dallas. That city is now a good place to remain away from. Many people are out of employment and crime is increasing.

Dr. W. B. Bizzell, president of the A. and M. college, says that it is as important to train young men for matrimony, as it is to teach the girls how to sew and cook. In this we think the learned professor is right; a married man who doesn't know any better than to hang the dish-rag on the phonograph horn and to sweep the parlor rug with the kitchen mop, has no business being at the head of a family. It is all right to know how to talk love to your better half, and most men should indulge in it more than they do. But how can the husband of modern means expect to give his frau a chance to keep her hair properly curled and her nose powdered if he doesn't know how to keep the bean pot boiling and the biscuit baking, while she is attending to such adornments?—Waco News-Tribune.

The Chicago Tribune says: "We have now discovered that baseball games have been bought and sold by unscrupulous gamblers and baseball players," declares Assistant State's Attorney Replogle, adviser to the grand jury. "There must be no repetition of this scandal. Congress should pass an act making it a felony by any one to offer a bribe or a gratuity to any baseball player playing interstate baseball, to play our national game other than on its merits; also making it a felony for any such player to accept such a bribe or gratuity."

BRYAN ODD FELLOWS GIVE INITIATION AND BANQUET AT GREAT CEREMONY THURSDAY EVE.

Navasota Lodge Confers the Degrees on Twelve New Members of Bryan Lodge—A Banquet Follows Ceremonies in Masterly Style.

Bryan Lodge No. 847 Independent Order of Odd Fellows, on Thursday evening beginning at 7:30 o'clock and closing at 12:15 a. m., held one of the most important meetings in its history. At this session twelve members were initiated in due form and given all the mysteries of the ancient order of the "Three Links." The ceremonies were conducted by the Navasota degree team after the following officers vacated their stations to the visiting Odd Fellows: O. E. Saunders, N. G.; C. S. Beckwith, V. G.; Lee J. Rountree, Chaplain; J. B. Priddy, P. G.; Joe B. Reed, Secretary; W. O. Holmes, Warden, and O. Mateson, I. G. The Navasota degree team was as follows: Allen Lowery, Henry Lipdley, Chas. W. Rolland, Louis Rolland, Joe Bedner, Chas. V. Vaughan, L. M. Hewitt, Charles Gilliland, Albert W. Ferguson, Clarence Cone and Chas. J. Sydow. And it is a real team and does splendid work.

Odd Fellowship was instituted in the United States on April 26, 1819, coming from England, having been introduced there by the Romans about one hundred years before it came to America. Five men headed by Thomas Wildey organized the order in Baltimore as Washington Lodge No. 1, over one hundred years ago. In June, 1865, just after the war between the states when the North and South were united in the presence of a vast assemblage of Odd Fellows from throughout the nation an imposing bronze monument was unveiled to the memory of Thomas Wildey. When this was done and fifty thousand people stood with reverent heads before the colossal figure some one asked, "Will the people of the United States have peace?" The reply was: "If they will imitate the Odd Fellows they can." The order was founded in Houston in 1838 as the Lone Star Lodge No. 1, with Grand Master De Cordova presiding. The Grand Lodge of Texas was organized in 1840 with three lodges, two in Houston and one in Galveston. Texas now has 150,000 members and there are 2,000,000 in the United States. President Anson Jones, of the Republic of Texas, was one of the eminent Odd Fellows during the Republic and was Grand Master for a number of years. Odd Fellowship proposes Brotherly Love, Friendship, Charity and the protection of the Widow and Orphan and the education of the youth of the land. Old Boonville Lodge No. 76 was organized in 1859 and a year or two later was moved to Bryan where it became a strength in the state. At one time Bryan offered a site for a Widow and Orphans Home, or a school and bought considerable property. The property was surrendered during hard times and the lodge failed to secure the institution. The order is now taking rank as a live and progressive institution. There are many other candidates to receive the mysteries of Odd Fellowship in Bryan.

At 11:15 a banquet was spread at the Butler Cafe under the direction of the following committee: W. O. Holmes, C. S. Beckwith and Lee J. Rountree. The appointments were carefully supervised by Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Butler. The menu was: "Celery, Olives, Pickles, Oyster Cocktail, Half Spring Chicken on Toast, Ice Cream and Cake, Tea, Coffee, Cigars." Noble Grand Saunders acted as toastmaster and appropriate talks were made by Dr. John A. Held, P. S. Park, Earl Fairman, J. B. Priddy, Oak McKenzie, R. M. Walker, Lee J. Rountree; from Navasota, L. M. Hewitt, V. C. Vaughan, and Allen Lowery. Mr. aSaunders thanked the visiting brethren for their great interest and assistance in the ceremonies that resulted in securing twelve new Odd Fellows as wearers of the "Three Links" in the future. Present were: Dr. J. A. Held, C. W. Crawford, J. E. Gammon, R. L. Buckley, E. H. Fairman, L. B. Maddox, W. O. Holmes, A. D. Graham, C. S. Cone, W. W. Bandy, Chas. Rowland, R. M. Walker, H. J. Lindley, W. M. Moseley, H. G. Umland, P. S. Park, J. F. Bednar, L. M. Hewitt, L. H. Rowland, C. E. Gilliland, A. O. Farquhar, C. H. Sydow, J. R. Witt, C. S. Beckwith, G. A. Lowery, W. B. Putnam, Kansas City, Mo.; Oak McKenzie, C. R. Elkins, O. O. Henderson, D. D. Williamson, R. E. Jones, J. B. Priddy, Thomas P. Gilmore, Guy F. Boyett, J. F. Casey, O. E. Saunders, Dewitt Graham, Joe B. Reed, O. Mateson, C. V. Vaughan and Lee J. Rountree.

There have been men high in church end state who have been engaging in large and small bribery, but in one scorn such criminals will meet their reward and pay the penalty. It is the inevitable.

BRYAN HI STILL MAINTAINS LEAD

(By ROY D. HENDERSON) Austin, Texas, Nov. 20.—With a very few exceptions, the week just closed has been uneventful for the University Intercollegiate League high school football race and the leading teams are maintaining their relative standing because weaker teams have been played. The two most important games that have a direct bearing upon the race were the Bryan-Houston and Waxahachie-Greenville contests in which Houston and Greenville were eliminated. Beaumont put Orange out of the running and Marshall lost her chances for the championship by her defeat at the hands of Forest High at Dallas. The coming week promises better results as many of the leading teams are scheduled to meet each other.

In many localities too much importance is being attached to the standing of teams as shown by the percentage table. With the present system of schedule making the percentages cannot show the true relation between the teams. Some teams with 1000 per cent do not show as much real strength as some of the teams as far down as the 600 per centers.

Few accidents were reported, this week. Edmondson, quarter-back for Harrisburg in the broken-collar b-ne. A member of the North Side Houston team sustained a broken left arm in the game with La Porte. The most serious accident reported occurred in the Alvin-South End, Jr., Houston, game when Tommy Rice of the latter team, fractured his skull in tackling an Alvin player in the open field. Rice is now in a fair way to recovery. The danger of accidents of this character can be lessened by the use of head-gear. Rice was not wearing headgear when this accident occurred.

COSTS MORE TO GATHER COTTON THAN STAPLE SELLS FOR

(By Associated Press) Abilene, Texas, Nov. 22.—Confronted by rapidly declining prices and unfavorable picking conditions thousands of farmers in West Texas will make no effort to gather a large part of the crop remaining unpicked, according to reports reaching here from all parts of West Texas. Farmers in many sections have announced their intention of letting the balance of the crop remain in the field to be plowed under for its value as fertilizer. They point out that at present prices it costs more to gather the crop than it is worth, and in some cases the farmer is unable to find any market at all for the staple. Thousands of farmers are planning to voluntarily reduce their cotton acreage next year to meet the situation.

CLAUDE R. LAWSON HAS RE-ENLISTED IN U. S. NAVY

Claude R. Lawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Lawson of this city, who recently received honorable discharge from the U. S. Navy where he served with distinction during the war, has re-enlisted for another four year term and has been ordered to report at New Orleans on December 3rd. Young Lawson volunteered for the Navy service in 1917 and, because of his unusual ability in electrical service was given a training course at Harvard. After his training was complete, he was immediately sent on board ship, as an operator and rose rapidly, until made chief radio operator, and served in that very responsible position to the date of his discharge. Upon his re-enlistment he has been assigned to serve duty in the Naval Communication Service, and stationed at New Orleans for the present. Young Lawson's many friends note with pride his honorable and efficient service in the U. S. Navy.

AN INCOMPETENT STATE ELECTION LAW

(By Associated Press) Austin, Nov. 23.—The canvass of the returns of the presidential electors from the last general election is to be started by state election board today according to Secretary of State C. D. Mims, who said the canvass should have started yesterday but the law pertaining to presidential electors confused with another state which provides that returns of state officers be canvassed forty days after election on December fourteenth this year. Presidential returns from some counties in Texas have not yet come in but the board will canvass those received.

MEXIA-GROESBECK OIL WELL COMES IN

Groesbeck, Texas, Nov. 23.—Oil in paying quantities has been found on the W. Rogers farm, eight miles north of Groesbeck, and west of Mexia. The oil went over the top of the derrick this morning before it was shut off. The well is 3,160 feet deep. Great pools of oil are around the derrick for one hundred yards. Leases are being bought and sold fast.

The strongest gas field in this part of the State is three or four miles west of Groesbeck, on which wells will be sunk as soon as possible. Groesbeck is full of people attracted here by the discovery.

OIL EXCITEMENT AT MEXIA AND GROESBECK WHEN ROGERS WELL COMES IN WITH OIL

There is Considerable Trading in Leases at Groesbeck and Mexia And Many Rumors Are Afloat—Many People Coming to These Points.

(By Associated Press) Groesbeck, Texas, Nov. 23.—Groesbeck is on the map. Discovery of oil on the Rodgers lease, seven miles north of here, has transformed this quiet little county seat into a storm center of bustling oil boom activity. News that high-grade petroleum was gushing fifty feet over the derrick at the Rodgers Well, which is being drilled by the Humphrey Petroleum company of Denver, Colo., spread with lightning rapidity throughout the state and started a frenzied rush to the scene of the latest Texas strike. Within twenty-four hours of the time the golden fluid started spraying the rig, Groesbeck was thronged with oil-mad lease hounds who swarmed in from all parts of the state in a wild scramble for acreage. Every incoming train brought in its load of boom pioneers and the roads were lined with incoming automobiles. Groesbeck's limited hotel facilities were quickly overwhelmed and rooms in private homes are being clamored for at any price.

FEVERISH TRADING IN SUPPOSED LEASES. Even before the vanguard of lease hounds had arrived the people of Groesbeck and surrounding communities were seized with the oil fever which swept this section like an epidemic. Lease trading and bargaining for acreage became the burning mania of every farmer and layman who felt the urge of the lust for riches.

The first inkling that oil had been discovered reached Groesbeck Saturday morning when it was reported that petroleum was standing in the well at a depth of 2800 feet. Late in the afternoon on the same day while the drillers were attempting to penetrate what they believe to be cap rock, the oil started in with a roar and spouted at least fifty feet over the top of the rig, according to eye witnesses. The flow subsided in a short time, however, and drilling was resumed under difficulties owing to the oil in the well. It has been drilled to a depth of about 3000 feet and the drillers believe they are near oil sand. They will not attempt to bring in the well until the owner, A. E. Humphrey of Denver, arrives here.

FIRST TEST WELL NEAR MEXIA.

The Rodgers well is the first test ever made in this vicinity which is regarded as one of the best producing gas fields in the state. Drilling was begun in 1919 and operations were carried on quietly. Residents in this county have paid little attention to the well and it was not until the strike was made Saturday that they began to have visions of a new oil field. The Rodgers lease is situated about seven miles north of here and three miles west of Mexia in the northwestern part of Limestone county, and about 30 miles east of Waco.

HIGH GRADE OIL IS REPORTED.

According to reports received here Monday morning, under-reaming is in progress and the well is expected to be brought in momentarily. Tests made Sunday showed that the oil which flowed above the surface Saturday had a specific gravity of .35, indicating a high percentage of gasoline. An earthen tank is being constructed to retain the flow of oil. Considerable lease trading was done between landowners in the territory adjoining the Humphrey company holdings Monday morning. Much of the property in that section is owned by J. O. Stroud, a wealthy farmer and oil man. One farmer is reported to have leased his land for $100 per acre.

BIG RUSH STARTS TO NEW FIELD.

The opening rush of oil speculators brought large numbers of lease hounds and acreage scouts from Dallas, Waco, Fort Worth and the West Texas oil fields. Some of them, eager to be on the ground first, drove great distances in automobiles, bringing emergency cars with them in case of break down.

Thousands of persons from all parts of this section drove or walked to the scene of the new discovery Sunday in hopes of seeing the gusher in action. All they found, however, was a dripping derrick, oil soaked ground and intense excitement. Groesbeck and Mexia are quickly assuming the aspect of bustling oil camps. Local citizens believe this town will be another Ranger or Burk Burnett, because it is the county seat, and they are preparing for a winter of flourishing activities.

The country will never have more houses until they are built. Waiting will not build homes.

Since a number of Dallas concerns have cut down the number of employees the city is calling for more detectives and officers on account of the crime wave now prevailing in Dallas. That city is now a good place to remain away from. Many people are out of employment and crime is increasing.

Dr. W. B. Bizzell, president of the A. and M. college, says that it is as important to train young men for matrimony, as it is to teach the girls how to sew and cook. In this we think the learned professor is right; a married man who doesn't know any better than to hang the dish-rag on the phonograph horn and to sweep the parlor rug with the kitchen mop, has no business being at the head of a family. It is all right to know how to talk love to your better half, and most men should indulge in it more than they do. But how can the husband of modern means expect to give his frau a chance to keep her hair properly curled and her nose powdered if he doesn't know how to keep the bean pot boiling and the biscuit baking, while she is attending to such adornments?—Waco News-Tribune.

The Chicago Tribune says: "We have now discovered that baseball games have been bought and sold by unscrupulous gamblers and baseball players," declares Assistant State's Attorney Regiole, adviser to the grand jury. "There must be no repetition of this scandal. Congress should pass an act making it a felony by any one to offer a bribe or a gratuity to any baseball player playing interstate baseball, to play our national game other than on its merits; also making it a felony for any such player to accept such a bribe or gratuity."

There have been men high in church and state who have been engaging in large and small bribery, but in one scorn such criminals will meet their reward and pay the penalty. It is the inevitable.

BRYAN HI STILL MAINTAINS LEAD

(By ROY D. HENDERSON)
Austin, Texas, Nov. 20.—With a very few exceptions, the week just closed has been uneventful for the University Intercollegiate League high school football race and the leading teams are maintaining their relative standing because weaker teams have been played. The two most important games that have a direct bearing upon the race were the Bryan-Houston and Waxahachie-Greenville contests in which Houston and Greenville were eliminated. Beaumont put Orange out of the running and Marshall lost her chances for the championship by her defeat at the hands of Forest High at Dallas. The coming week promises better results as many of the leading teams are scheduled to meet each other.

In many localities too much importance is being attached to the standing of teams as shown by the percentage table. With the present system of schedule making the percentages cannot show the true relation between the teams. Some teams with 1000 per cent do not show as much real strength as some of the teams as far down as the 600 per centers.

Few accidents were reported, this week. Edmondson, quarter-back for Harrisburg in the Humble-Harrisburg game suffered a broken collar bone. A member of the North Side Houston team sustained a broken left arm in the game with La Porte. The most serious accident reported occurred in the Alvin-South End, Jr., Houston, game when Tommy Rice of the latter team, fractured his skull in tackling an Alvin player in the open field. Rice is now in a fair way to recovery. The danger of accidents of this character can be lessened by the use of head-gear. Rice was not wearing headgear when this accident occurred.

DEVIL IS ON RAM-PAGE AT WAXAHACHIE

(By Associated Press)
Waxahachie, Texas, Nov. 24.—"The devil has been running rampant in the last week or ten days," declared District Judge F. L. Hawkins, in giving instructions to the grand jury, following its reconvening here this week after a recess of a few weeks. It had been planned to have the grand jury resume its deliberations Nov. 29, but that body was called back a week earlier by Judge Hawkins.

"I never knew of such a wave of crime in this county and in adjacent counties," said Judge Hawkins, continuing his charge.

"We seem to be passing through a period of readjustment in which we may expect such a thing. Therefore, it was thought necessary to bring you back a week early. There are quite a number of things that ought to be investigated."

COSTS MORE TO GATHER COTTON THAN STAPLE SELLS FOR

(By Associated Press)
Abilene, Texas, Nov. 22.—Confronted by rapidly declining prices and unfavorable picking conditions thousands of farmers in West Texas will make no effort to gather a large part of the crop remaining unpicked, according to reports reaching here from all parts of West Texas. Farmers in many sections have announced their intention of letting the balance of the crop remain in the field to be plowed under for its value as fertilizer. They point out that at present prices it costs more to gather the crop than it is worth, and in some cases the farmer is unable to find any market at all for the staple. Thousands of farmers are planning to voluntarily reduce their cotton acreage next year to meet the situation.

Upon his re-enlistment he has been assigned to shore duty in the Naval Communication Service, and stationed at New Orleans for the present. Young Lawson's many friends note with pride his honorable and efficient service in the U. S. Navy.

Presidential returns from some counties in Texas have not yet come in but the board will canvass those received.

OLD WORTHAM WELL SHOWING OIL AGAIN

(By Associated Press) Wortham, Texas, Nov. 22.—The old city well, drilled for water eight years ago in the streets of Wortham and "ruined" by oil and gas, is now standing to the top of the casing. This the Freestone County Oil and Drilling Company, which is reopening the well, reported today. The oil is stading to the top of the casing. This well came in in 1912 as a gasser spraying oil. Because the oil was worth little in those days and there was no market for gas, it was shut off. R. J. Eckhardt of Taylor, general manager of the local company drilling for oil east of town, arranged to have the city well reopened. It was necessary for the drillers to dig down around the first two lengths of casing and in doing so they had to work in oil after getting thirty-three feet below ground. The well has not been tested, but experienced oil men predict that it will be a good pumper. R. M. Whitesides and associates, drilling a shallow well on the Tucker far near the old Curry gin, six miles north of town, are now down 194 feet. The deep test of the Freestone Company has been delayed to procure an under-reamer, but is now drilling again.

THE SHOE POLISHING MACHINE A SUCCESS

Mr. C. A. Harris, president of the Automatic Shoe Polishing Co., which has just received a fine machine from the factory at Cleveland, Ohio, made under the direction of George T. Trundle Jr., consulting engineer of Cleveland, Ohio, is in receipt of a number of inquiries regarding this wonderful machine now on exhibition at the Hotel Bryan. Mr. Harris states that the Popular Mechanics has devoted some space to this machine and that its advent has been published in Germany. He is in receipt of a letter from J. C. Ulmer & Co., of Cleveland, offering to aid the Bryan company in transacting business in foreign countries, where it is attracting attention.

Engineer Trundle states that the present machine was put on trial in Cleveland one evening from 5 to 8:30 o'clock and one hundred people had their shoes polished. "One of the customers," Mr. Trundle says, "was an elderly lady over seventy years old who was very much pleased with the results." He continues: The polishing mechanism is very simple, consisting of five brushes which run at about 300 revolutions per minute. Three of these brushes clean off the dirt, apply the paste and polish the sides of the shoe, while the other two polish the top and toe of the shoe. It requires exactly 50 seconds to complete the job."

The Eagle understands that Judge W. C. Davis will go to Austin soon to look after the incorporation of the Automatic Shoe Polishing Company and when this is done by all means the factory should be located in Bryan where all the machines can be made and sent throughout the United States and foreign countries.

BOLSHEVIKI HAVE COUNTERFEIT MONEY

(By Associated Press)
Antwerp, Nov. 24.—Attempts of Bolshevik agents to get through to America with counterfeit money, made in Moscow, which it is believed they planned to use in financing radical red movements in the United States, have been discovered and, perhaps, thwarted by American government agents in Central Europe.

In connection with what officials believe to be a very carefully organized scheme to encourage strikes, unrest and promote bolshevism in the United States, directed from Moscow, evidence has been secured of a plan to send to the United States bogus paper currency of several European nations, to be changed there into valid banknotes or securities.

Four men, coming direct from Moscow, who sought to go to America were known to have had in their possession counterfeit French banknotes representing more than $100,000.

The Moscow scheme, according to these officials, is quite simple; the changing in one country of the false counterfeit money of another, on the theory that buyers are not particularly familiar with the appearance of foreign currency.

A considerable amount of this bogus money is believed to have been passed successfully in America, as recently, a number of Polish bolshevik agitators, returning to Poland from America for the purpose, it is believed, of promoting bolshevism behind the lines of the Polish army which was fighting the reds, have had in their possession thousands of dollars in American currency, thought to have been secured in exchange for bogus foreign banknotes in America.

"This Moscow counterfeiting scheme is an exceedingly ingenious, double-crossing one," said one police official who has been following it. "The Kremlin theory is that this 'queer stuff,' when changed, provides good money for bolshevik uses, and, at the same time, by flooding the world with bad money, sends prices up, creates unrest and makes things ripe for the big revolution Lenin is looking for."

MANY STOWAWAYS COMING TO GALVESTON

Galveston, Texas, Nov. 24.—The high cost of living and scarcity of employment in European countries is sending an unusual number of stowaways to Galveston, according to immigration authorities here. Recently seven such unofficial passengers arrived here within three days.

Coming chiefly from the ports of Holland and Belgium, which, owing to the passport restrictions of other European countries, are said by immigration officials to be serving as "clearing houses" for undesirables, the stowaways frequently arrive here faint from hunger and exposure.

On the heels of the recent announcement by Moscow that 25,000 "missionaries" and agitators were being sent to the United States, this influx of stowaways is regarded with suspicion here and great care is being taken that no emissary of Lenin and Trotsky is permitted to gain his liberty.

Stowaways, however, who are skilled in some trade or craft whereby they can earn a living in this country, who are free from disease and can pass the literacy test, sometimes are admitted by the examining board.

CEMETERY ASS'N. WAS FORMED ON TUESDAY AFTERNOON

According to previous announcement a meeting was held at the Carnegie library Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a Bryan Cemetery Association. The meeting was called to order by Chairman George A. Adams, of the city development committee of the Bryan and Brazos County Chamber of Commerce and he was elected temporary chairman and S. E. Eberstadt was appointed temporary secretary of the meeting.

City Commissioner L. L. McInnis was called to explain the proposition which has been under discussion for some time by those interested in beautifying the "silent city of the dead." Major McInnis suggested a general membership for all the people of Bryan followed by donations from those who owned lots in the cemetery. He suggested that later on perhaps a small tax could be levied for cemetery purposes which would meet the issues. Major McInnis suggested that a board of directors of four women and three men could be elected to have charge of the business of the association.

Secretary S. E. Eberstadt presented the by-laws of the Sulphur Springs Cemetery Association which has been in operation for thirty years and has improved one of the most beautiful cemeteries in Texas and now has an income of about $4,000 per year.

Mrs. M. W. Sims, Sr., spoke in favor of going immediately to work and favored making a membership drive. Mrs. Sims said that this needed organization had been delayed too long already.

Chairman Adams and Major McInnis submitted a number of details and ordered the meeting to pass on them. Talks were made by President E. J. Jenkins, of the Chamber of Commerce, Rev. W. H. Trainum, pastor of the Christian church, and Rev. W. N. Sholl, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Oak McKenzie, Prof. R. O. Allen, Mrs. J. E. Covey, Mrs. R. S. Webb, Secretary S. E. Eberstadt, Mrs. Hettie Curry, Mrs. John E. Astin, Mrs. G. M. Brandon and others.

Upon motion of Mrs. John E. Astin it was agreed to appoint a membership committee of eight ladies with Mrs. R. S. Webb, Sr., as chairman and that the general membership fee would be $1.00. Chairman Adams was instructed to appoint the other seven members of the committee.

The question of naming a board of directors was discussed by Major McInnis, E. J. Jenkins, Mrs. John E. Astin, Mrs. M. W. Sims, Mrs. G. M. Brandon and others and after opening the membership roll about forty becoming members at once, the following committee was appointed to nominate a board of seven directors: Major L. L. McInnis, Geo. A. Adams, Mrs. M. W. Sims, Mrs. John E. Astin and Mrs. G. M. Brandon. It was agreed that another meeting would be held on Tuesday afternoon, December 7, hear the report of the membership committee and to form a permanent organization.

All the speakers voiced the sentiment that Bryan needs a cemetery association to take up the work of improving and beautifying the cemetery and the work was begun in a systematic and good way to succeed. The meeting two weeks hence (first Tuesday afternoon in December) will be of great importance to all and there should be a large attendance when it is expected to form a permanent organization.

BIG TEXAS TURKEYS FOR THANKSGIVING

(By Associated Press)
Fort Worth, Texas, Nov. 25.—Texas turkeys by the hundreds of thousands filled Thanksgiving plates of the entire nation today. The crop is the best ever known and the Thanksgiving demand hasn't even dented the Texas supply, according to local packers, who have been filling northern and eastern orders by the carload. Last year's shipments were heavy but this year's have equalled them. The price has been from a cent to two cents a pound under the 1919 quotations.

The 1919 supply of birds was below normal, due to the most part to the extended droughts which had prevailed in many sections of the state for three years. However, rains began to fall a year ago and pastures everywhere bloomed this spring. Feed crops were the best ever known and turkeys thrived. Farms teemed with turkeys and still have a plentiful supply, according to the local packers.

The North and East depend principally upon Texas for their turkeys and for the most part the fowls are handled through the packing plants here. They are bought in droves all over the state, killed and shipped here for final dressing and crating. Many remain in cold storage for weeks before being sent north.

One local packer shipped eleven carloads of turkeys last week to the Chicago market; another sent 400,000 pounds to New York. A third sent 120,000 of dressed turkeys to Chicago. The prevailing price is 39 cents for the dressed meat and 32 cents for the birds on foot. Reports received by the packers and wholesale produce men indicate that the supply on Texas farms is still practically untouched and that the Christmas demand can easily be filled.

T. K. Lawrence, the football enthusiast, could not be found at the depot this morning. It is thought perhaps he had gone on before the excursion to Austin and was already cheering for the Aggies as winners. It takes such spirit as this to win.

"In the early days of Texas when Cincinnati friends gave these two guns to the state" the man explained, "two little girls—the 'Twin Sisters'—were sponsors for the gift. One of these twins was my grandmother." Among those who have devoted much of their time during the past few years to keeping alive the restoration project are John E. Cosgrove of the Confederate Home at Austin, Lon Smith, state comptroller-elect, members of numerous historical societies and several state officials.

Dr. R. H. Harrison, Judge T. J. Maloney and son Milton, were among the crowd that went to Austin.

The Nation's Business, organ of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, had an editorial approval of the new Louisiana anti-bribery law, in its October issue. Men who bribe other men in business are better than Jesse James, Sam Bass or Cole Younger.

TEXAS LEISLATURE IS ASKED TO LOCATE THE "TWIN SISTERS"

(By Associated Press)
Dallas, Texas, Nov. 25.—Hope that the famous "Twin Sisters," the two small cannon which figured so largely in Texas' struggle for independence, will be restored was revived here this week, as it is intended to take steps at the next session of the Texas legislature in January toward locating the historic relics. The action will take the form of a resolution asking for an appropriation to conduct the search, if, after investigation, the plan appears practical, as many believe that the cannon can be located. Should the appropriation be made, lovers of Texas history may realize a dream of more than half a century, and to the people of the Lone Star State may be given the greatest memorial, perhaps, in existence of the heroic fight against the Mexican hordes in 1836.

Success in locating the "Twin Sisters" depends upon one man—Dr. H. N. Graves of Dallas—the only survivor of the five Confederate soldiers who buried the guns near Harrisburg, Texas, early in June, 1865. Dr. Graves has visited the spot several times, his latest visit being during the Confederate re-union at Houston this fall, and he recently expressed himself as not only willing, but eager to lead the search. He probably will be aided by an expert from the physics department of the Texas University who will be equipped with a delicate instrument used in locating buried metals. The instrument is said to be practically infallible when operated within a few hundred yards of the object sought.

Despite his advanced age—for he is nearing his eightieth milestone—Dr. Graves' memory is remarkably clear and he is able to recall even the minutest details of the burial of the relics. "The burial took place soon after Governor Pendleton Murrah's attempt to obtain special terms of surrender for our division from the head of the blockading squadron of federal warships anchored near what is now known as the Galveston jetties," Dr. Graves related recently.

"It was shortly after the 'break-up' of Southern forces occurred that Governor Murrah asked for volunteers to remain in Galveston while he negotiated with the commander of the squadron. Four hundred of us volunteered and took up our stations on the island. However, when the governor returned from the warships five days later, all but 72 of the volunteers had become tired of waiting and had gone home.

"Those of us who had waited" continued Dr. Graves, "then started inland, our first stop being at Harrisburg. When we reached this point we found a pile of abandoned cannon where they had been dumped by the roadside. In the pile were the two small guns so dear to the hearts of Texas patriots—the 'Twin Sisters'.

"To allow these precious guns to fall into the hands of the Yankees was unthinkable. We had been beaten but the fire of patriotism was still there, and while the greater part of our party resumed the journey, five of us and, in addition, my negro body guard, Dan, remained at Harrisburg with the determination to put the 'Twin Sisters' where they would be safe forever. Those who remained were: Jack Taylor, Ira Bennett, Sol J. Thomas, John Barnett, my negro, Dan, and myself.

"As night drew near we started to dig the grave. 'We will bury the little darlings so deep that no infernal Yankee will ever find them' we said fervently as we started to work with the spades. But though our fervor did not diminish our strength did, and for my part, I was glad to let my negro finish my share of the work.

"At last the task was completed and after dismantling the 'Twin Sisters' we rolled them into the grave. Then after filling in the earth over the guns we proceeded to destroy all evidence of the burial. All metal parts, such as the iron tires, were dumped into the bayou nearby. Then with the wood we built a fire over the freshly spaded dirt and scattered the ashes in every direction. Before leaving we marked the spot carefully by notching the trees surrounding the grave.

"More than thirty years later John Barnett and I went to Harrisburg with the intention of digging up the buried cannon. We located the exact spot but had to abandon the project because the owner of the land was away and we did not want to dig into his property without his consent. We waited several days for him to return and then we left for home." Several years ago Dr. Graves received a letter from a man who declared that he was deeply interested in the movement to find the cannon and asked to be permitted to accompany the doctor if the search ever is made.

"There are thousands of uncultivated acres in the United States," he says, "where city dwellers now unemployed can raise enough food to support their families. The practice of thrift will be necessary in making the change from city to country, but those who return to the farm will be assured of enough to eat and good health, so that they can look forward to peace and an independent career. The one-crop idea should not be put into practice, but crops must be diversified and the cultivation of too much land must be avoided. It will take determination to follow this plan, but any aversion to the change will wear away with time."

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hoppess and son Coulter, of Hillsboro, are Thanksgiving day guests of Mrs. J. W. Coulter. Mr. Hoppess will return home tomorrow but Mrs. Hoppess will remain for a longer visit.

STATE-WIDE RIVALRY BETWEEN THE TEAMS

(By Associated Press)
Austin, Texas, Nov. 24.—Another episode in the greatest sporting drama ever developed in the South-west will unfold Thanksgiving day, when Texas A. & M. and Texas University student bodies and faculty go almost as a whole with their teams to the gridiron at Clark Field here.

The rivalry between the two institutions has permeated the whole state, and Texas Aggie fans can be found in almost every city and village. It has invaded politics, more than one bitter fight in the legislature having originated from attitudes of officials toward these institutions.

The sporting rivalry developed to such a pitch in 1911 that a football game at Houston between the two schools was followed by a free-for-all fight between their respective students which got beyond the control of the police and raged for more than an hour.

The two first met on the gridiron in 1894. Since that time Texas has won sixteen games and A. & M. has won seven. Texas has made a total of 365 points to 119 made by A. & M. However, much of this seeming superiority was the result of the first eight years, during which A. & M. failed to score against Texas, and during recent years results have shown A. & M. to be stronger. In 1919 A. & M. beat Texas by a score of 7 to 0.

The two institutions, in a manner, represent two different kinds of football. The university attracts the greater number of high school stars, while A. & M., to a larger extent, draws hard, husky lads from smaller schools. During recent years the Farmers have played hard straight football and relied mostly upon smashing the line and dumping interference in runs around the end, with a preference for the former. The Longhorns have resorted more freely to the forward pass and trick plays, and depend largely upon speed.

K. OF P. WILL HAVE MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

(By Associated Press)
Houston, Texas, Nov. 24.—A continent-wide drive for membership which has for its aim to obtain 200,000 candidates in the next two years is to be carried out by the Knights of Pythias order, according to B. W. Steele, of Houston, grand prelate of the grand lodge of Texas. "When this quota of new members has been obtained by the lodges in the United States and Canada, the order will then have a total membership of 1,000,000 men," he said.

"Under a plan outlined by the supreme lodge at its recent convention in Minneapolis, a survey will be made in every community in which a lodge is located, and a systematic canvass instituted. The campaign includes an outline of the uniform rank to attract the younger men and to extend the benefits of the insurance department as a means of protection for a man with a dependent family.

"Plans were formed at the convention to nationalize the various Pythian homes throughout the country and place all homes for aged Pythians and orphans of members under control of the supreme body.

"The supreme lodge also authorized the return of the unexpended balance of the Pythian war relief fund to the grand domains making the subscriptions. Nearly $250,000 left in this fund raised during the war will be returned to the grand lodges to be used in furtherance of development plans.

"Reports made at the convention show that the order has gained 80,000 members during the last year; and that the Pythian Sisters have a membership of more than 300,000, and that the military department is making rapid progress among returned soldiers."

URGES JOBLESS IN CITIES NOW TO GO BACK TO THE FARM

(By Associated Press)
Dallas, Texas, Nov. 24.—"Back to the farm" for those city workers who have recently been thrown out of employment by a curtailment of production is the suggestion made by D. E. Lyday, president of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union of Texas, for obviating the danger of hard times. Mr. Lyday believes that the present decreases in business activities will not be short-lived, but will prove to be a permanent readjustment of economic conditions.

"There are thousands of uncultivated acres in the United States," he says, "where city dwellers now unemployed can raise enough food to support their families. The practice of thrift will be necessary in making the change from city to country, but those who return to the farm will be assured of enough to eat and good health, so that they can look forward to peace and an independent career. KENTUCKY GOBBLER WHIPPED TEXAS BIRD

(By Associated Press)
Washington, Nov. 24.—President Wilson's prospective Thanksgiving feast was temporarily in the balance today when the two turkeys sent for the event began a battle for supremacy back of the White House. One was that sent by the Chamber of Commerce of Cuero, Tex., and the other a large bird arriving yesterday from South Trimble farm, in Kentucky. The birds were released to pick up a little more weight from the yard.

The Cuero bird made a jump for his rival, landing well on the other's head, but through a quick recovery the Kentucky product came back with telling effect, and for a moment put the Cuero turkey out of commission. White House attendants separated the gamblers, both bleeding as the result of the assaults. They are now in separated inclosures.

WOMAN'S CLUB NOTES.

The meeting of the Woman's club on Wednesday was unusually interesting owing to the fact that the club was so well represented at the 23rd annual convention of the T. E. W. C. which has just adjourned at San Antonio. The reports brought back by the enthusiastic Bryan delegation were most helpful and inspiring. Mrs. Hoyle, as official delegate, gave the summary of the real work of the convention, Mrs. E. J. Fountain, chairman of civics for the club, brought home many new and practical plans for civic improvement and stated that her committee was ready to go enthusiastically to work on court house grounds, school grounds and the planting of trees along the college highway. She also reported no picture of civic improvement at the convention more attractive than our own library grounds. Mrs. Curry, state chairman of literature, told of the wonderful speakers at the convention and the messages they brought. Mrs. M. W. Sims, described the H. C. L. luncheon and made over style show, late artistic musical on Fine Arts Evening, the Press Dinner, and many other social features provided by the San Antonio club women. Mrs. J. C. Nagle, president of the 4th district gave a brief report of the splendid work done by the district. The Bryan women who went to the convention are enthusiastic in their plans for forming a county. On next Wednesday and Thursday the club cordially invites the Bryan public to the short course on thrift conducted by Miss Laura Neal and staff of A. & M. college, not only the Bryan women but every woman in Brazos county is invited to attend this short course. BOLSHEVIKI HAVE COUNTERFEIT MONEY

(By Associated Press)
Antwerp, Nov. 24.—Attempts of Bolshevik agents to get through to America with counterfeit money, made in Moscow, which it is believed they planned to use in financing radical movements in the United States, have been discovered and, perhaps, thwarted by American government agents in Central Europe.

In connection with what officials believe to be a very carefully organized scheme to encourage strikes, unrest and promote bolshevism in the United States, directed from Moscow, evidence has been secured of a plan to send to the United States bogus paper currency of several European nations, to be changed there into valid banknotes or securities.

Four men, coming direct from Moscow, who sought to go to America were known to have had in their possession counterfeit French banknotes representing more than $100,000.

The Moscow scheme, according to these officials, is quite simple; the changing in one country of the false counterfeit money of another, on the theory that buyers are not particularly familiar with the appearance of foreign currency.

A considerable amount of this bogus money is believed to have been passed successfully in America, as recently, a number of Polish bolshevik agitators, returning to Poland from America for the purpose, it is believed, of promoting bolshevism behind the lines of the Polish army which was fighting the reds, have had in their possession thousands of dollars in American currency, thought to have been secured in exchange for bogus foreign banknotes in America.

"This Moscow counterfeiting scheme is an exceedingly ingenious, double-crossing one," said one police official who has been following it. "The Kremlin theory is that this 'queer stuff,' when changed, provides good money for bolshevik uses, and, at the same time, by flooding the world with bad money, sends prices up, creates unrest and makes things ripe for the big revolution Lenin is looking for."

MANY STOWAWAYS COMING TO GALVESTON

Galveston, Texas, Nov. 24.—The high cost of living and scarcity of employment in European countries is sending an unusual number of stowaways to Galveston, according to immigration authorities here. Recently seven such unofficial passengers arrived here within three days.

Coming chiefly from the ports of Holland and Belgium, which, owing to the passport restrictions of other European countries, are said by immigration officials to be serving as "clearing houses" for undesirables, the stowaways frequently arrive here faint from hunger and exposure.

On the heels of the recent announcement by Moscow that 25,000 "missionaries" and agitators were being sent to the United States, this influx of stowaways is regarded with suspicion here and great care is being taken that no emissary of Lenin and Trotsky is permitted to gain his liberty.

Stowaways, however, who are skilled in some trade or craft whereby they can earn a living in this country, who are free from disease and can pass the literacy test, sometimes are admitted by the examining board.

CEMETERY ASS'N. WAS FORMED ON TUESDAY AFTERNOON

According to previous announcement a meeting was held at the Carnegie library Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a Bryan Cemetery Association. The meeting was called to order by Chairman George A. Adams, of the city development committee of the Bryan and Brazos County Chamber of Commerce and he was elected temporary chairman and S. E. Eberstadt was appointed temporary secretary of the meeting.

City Commissioner L. L. McInnis was called to explain the proposition which has been under discussion for some time by those interested in beautifying the "silent city of the dead." Major McInnis suggested a general membership for all the people of Bryan followed by donations from those who owned lots in the cemetery. He suggested that later on perhaps a small tax could be levied for cemetery purposes which would meet the issues. Major McInnis suggested that a board of directors of four women and three men could be elected to have charge of the business of the association.

Secretary S. E. Eberstadt presented the by-laws of the Sulphur Springs Cemetery Association which has been in operation for thirty years and has improved one of the most beautiful cemeteries in Texas and now has an income of about $4,000 per year.

Mrs. M. W. Sims, Sr., spoke in favor of going immediately to work and favored making a membership drive. Mrs. Sims said that this needed organization had been delayed too long already.

Chairman Adams and Major McInnis submitted a number of details and ordered the meeting to pass on them. Talks were made by President E. J. Jenkins, of the Chamber of Commerce, Rev. W. H. Trainum, pastor of the Christian church, and Rev. W. N. Sholl, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Oak McKenzie, Prof. R. O. Allen, Mrs. J. E. Covey, Mrs. R. S. Webb, Secretary S. E. Eberstadt, Mrs. Hettie Curry, Mrs. John E. Astin, Mrs. G. M. Brandon and others.

Upon motion of Mrs. John E. Astin it was agreed to appoint a membership committee of eight ladies with Mrs. R. S. Webb, Sr., as chairman and that the general membership fee would be $1.00. Chairman Adams was instructed to appoint the other seven members of the committee.

The question of naming a board of directors was discussed by Major McInnis, E. J. Jenkins, Mrs. John E. Astin, Mrs. M. W. Sims, Mrs. G. M. Brandon and others and after opening the membership roll about forty becoming members at once, the following committee was appointed to nominate a board of seven directors: Major L. L. McInnis, Geo. A. Adams, Mrs. M. W. Sims, Mrs. John E. Astin and Mrs. G. M. Brandon. It was agreed that another meeting would be held on Tuesday afternoon, December 7, hear the report of the membership committee and to form a permanent organization.

All the speakers voiced the sentiment that Bryan needs a cemetery association to take up the work of improving and beautifying the cemetery and the work was begun in a systematic and good way to succeed. The meeting two weeks hence (first Tuesday afternoon in December) will be of great importance to all and there should be a large attendance when it is expected to form a permanent organization.

BIG TEXAS TURKEYS FOR THANKSGIVING

(By Associated Press)
Fort Worth, Texas, Nov. 25.—Texas turkeys by the hundreds of thousands filled Thanksgiving plates of the entire nation today. The crop is the best ever known and the Thanksgiving demand hasn't even dented the Texas supply, according to local packers, who have been filling northern and eastern orders by the carload. Last year's shipments were heavy but this year's have equalled them. The price has been from a cent to two cents a pound under the 1919 quotations.

The 1919 supply of birds was below normal, due to the most part to the extended droughts which had prevailed in many sections of the state for three years. However, rains began to fall a year ago and pastures everywhere bloomed this spring. Feed crops were the best ever known and turkeys thrived. Farms teemed with turkeys and still have a plentiful supply, according to the local packers.

The North and East depend principally upon Texas for their turkeys and for the most part the fowls are handled through the packing plants here. They are bought in droves all over the state, killed and shipped here for final dressing and crating. Many remain in cold storage for weeks before being sent north.

One local packer shipped eleven carloads of turkeys last week to the Chicago market; another sent 400,000 pounds to New York. A third sent 120,000 of dressed turkeys to Chicago. The prevailing price is 39 cents for the dressed meat and 32 cents for the birds on foot. Reports received by the packers and wholesale produce men indicate that the supply on Texas farms is still practically untouched and that the Christmas demand can easily be filled.

T. K. Lawrence, the football enthusiast, could not be found at the depot this morning. It is thought perhaps he had gone on before the excursion for the Aggies as winners. It takes such spirit as this to win.

TEXAS LEISLATURE IS ASKED TO LOCATE THE "TWIN SISTERS"

(By Associated Press)
Dallas, Texas, Nov. 25.—Hope that the famous "Twin Sisters," the two small cannon which figured so largely in Texas' struggle for independence, will be restored was revived here this week, as it is intended to take steps at the next session of the Texas legislature in January toward locating the historic relics. The action will take the form of a resolution asking for an appropriation to conduct the search, if, after investigation, the plan appears practical, as many believe that the cannon can be located. Should the appropriation be made, lovers of Texas history may realize a dream of more than half a century, and to the people of the Lone Star State may be given the greatest memorial, perhaps, in existence of the heroic fight against the Mexican hordes in 1836.

Success in locating the "Twin Sisters" depends upon one man—Dr. H. N. Graves of Dallas—the only survivor of the five Confederate soldiers who buried the guns near Harrisburg, Texas, early in June, 1865. Dr. Graves has visited the spot several times, his latest visit being during the Confederate re-union at Houston this fall, and he recently expressed himself as not only willing, but eager to lead the search. He probably will be aided by an expert from the physics department of the Texas University who will be equipped with a delicate instrument used in locating buried metals. The instrument is said to be practically infallible when operated within a few hundred yards of the object sought.

Despite his advanced age—for he is nearing his eightieth milestone—Dr. Graves' memory is remarkably clear and he is able to recall even the minutest details of the burial of the relics. "The burial took place soon after Governor Pendleton Murrah's attempt to obtain special terms of surrender for our division from the head of the blockading squadron of federal warships anchored near what is now known as the Galveston jetties," Dr. Graves related recently.

"It was shortly after the 'break-up' of Southern forces occurred that Governor Murrah asked for volunteers to remain in Galveston while he negotiated with the commander of the squadron. Four hundred of us volunteered and took up our stations on the island. However, when the governor returned from the warships five days later, all but 72 of the volunteers had become tired of waiting and had gone home.

"Those of us who had waited" continued Dr. Graves, "then started inland, our first stop being at Harrisburg. When we reached this point we found a pile of abandoned cannon where they had been dumped by the roadside. In the pile were the two small guns so dear to the hearts of Texas patriots—the 'Twin Sisters.'"

"To allow these precious guns to fall into the hands of the Yankees was unthinkable. We had been beaten but the fire of patriotism was still there, and while the greater part of our party resumed the journey, five of us and, in addition, my negro body guard, Dan, remained at Harrisburg with the determination to put the 'Twin Sisters' where they would be safe forever. Those who remained were: Jack Taylor, Ira Prewitt, Sol J. Thomas, John Barnett, my negro, Dan, and myself.

"As night drew near we started to dig the grave. 'We will bury the little darlings so deep that no infernal Yankee will ever find them' we said fervently as we started to work with the spades. But though our fervor did not diminish our strength did, and for my part, I was glad to let my negro finish my share of the work.

"At last the task was completed and after dismantling the 'Twin Sisters' we rolled them into the grave. Then after filling in the earth over the guns we proceeded to destroy all evidence of the burial. All metal parts, such as the iron tires, were dumped into the bayou nearby. Then with the wood we built a fire over the freshly spaded dirt and scattered the ashes in every direction. Before leaving we marked the spot carefully by notching the trees surrounding the grave.

"More than thirty years later John Barnett and I went to Harrisburg with the intention of digging up the buried cannon. We located the exact spot but had to abandon the project because the owner of the land was away and we did not want to dig into his property without his consent. We waited several days for him to return and then we left for home." Several years ago Dr. Graves received a letter from a man who declared that he was deeply interested in the movement to find the cannon and asked to be permitted to accompany the doctor if the search ever is made.

"In the early days of Texas when Cincinnati friends gave these two guns to the state" the man explained, "two little girls—the 'Twin Sisters'—were sponsors for the gift. One of these twins was my grandmother." Among those who have devoted much of their time during the past few years to keeping alive the restoration project are John E. Cosgrove of the Confederate Home at Austin, Lon Smith, state comptroller-elect, members of numerous historical societies and several state officials.

Dr. R. H. Harrison, Judge T. J. Maloney and son Milton, were among the crowd that went to Austin.

The Nation's Business, organ of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, had an editorial approval of the new Louisiana anti-bribery law, its in October issue. Men who bribe other men in business are no better than Jesse James, Sam Bass or Cole Younger.

STATE-WIDE RIVALRY BETWEEN THE TEAMS

(By Associated Press)
Austin, Texas, Nov. 24.—Another episode in the greatest sporting drama ever developed in the South-west will unfold Thanksgiving day, when Texas A. & M. and Texas University student bodies and faculty go almost as a whole with their teams to the gridiron at Clark Field here.

The rivalry between the two institutions has permeated the whole state, and Texas Aggie fans can be found in almost every city and village. It has invaded politics, more than one bitter fight in the legislature having originated from attitudes of officials toward these institutions.

The sporting rivalry developed to such a pitch in 1911 that a football game at Houston between the two schools was followed by a free-for-all fight between their respective students which got beyond the control of the police and raged for more than an hour.

The two first met on the gridiron in 1894. Since that time Texas has won sixteen games and A. & M. has won seven. Texas has made a total of 365 points to 119 made by A. & M. However, much of this seeming superiority was the result of the first eight years, during which A. & M. failed to score against Texas, and during recent years results have shown A. & M. to be stronger. In 1919 A. & M. beat Texas by a score of 7 to 0.

The two institutions, in a manner, represent two different kinds of football. The university attracts the greater number of high school stars, while A. & M., to a larger extent, draws hard, husky lads from smaller schools. During recent years the Farmers have played hard straight football and relied mostly upon smashing the line and dumping interference in runs around the end, with a preference for the former. The Longhorns have resorted more freely to the forward pass and trick plays, and depend largely upon speed.

K. OF P. WILL HAVE MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

(By Associated Press)
Houston, Texas, Nov. 24.—A continent-wide drive for membership which has for its aim to obtain 200,000 candidates in the next two years is to be carried out by the Knights of Pythias order, according to B. W. Steele, of Houston, grand prelate of the grand lodge of Texas. "When this quota of new members has been obtained by the lodges in the United States and Canada, the order will then have a total membership of 1,000,000 men," he said.

"Under a plan outlined by the supreme lodge at its recent convention in Minneapolis, a survey will be made in every community in which a lodge is located, and a systematic canvass instituted. The campaign includes an outline of the uniform rank to attract the younger men and to extend the benefits of the insurance department as a means of protection for a man with a dependent family.

"Plans were formed at the convention to nationalize the various Pythian homes throughout the country and place all homes for aged Pythians and orphans of members under control of the supreme body.

"The supreme lodge also authorized the return of the unexpended balance of the Pythian war relief fund to the grand domains making the subscriptions. Nearly $250,000 left in this fund raised during the war will be returned to the grand lodges to be used in furtherance of development plans.

"Reports made at the convention show that the order has gained 80,000 members during the last year; that the Pythian Sisters have a membership of more than 300,000, and that the military department is making rapid progress among returned soldiers. "The Knights of Khorrassan, the 'playground of the order,' showed a gain of nearly 100 per cent in the last year and now has more than 75,000 adherents."

URGES JOBLESS IN CITIES NOW TO GO BACK TO THE FARM

(By Associated Press)
Dallas, Texas, Nov. 24.—"Back to the farm" for those city workers who have recently been thrown out of employment by a curtailment of production is the suggestion made by D. E. Lyday, president of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union of Texas, for obviating the danger of hard times. Mr. Lyday believes that the present decreases in business activities will not be short-lived, but will prove to be a permanent readjustment of economic conditions.

There are thousands of uncultivated acres in the United States," he says, "where city dwellers now unemployed can raise enough food to support their families. The practice of thrift will be necessary in making the change from city to country, but those who return to the farm will be assured of enough to eat and good health, so that they can look forward to peace and an independent career. The one crop idea should not be put into practice, but crops must be diversified and the cultivation of too much land must be avoided. It will take determination to follow this plan, but any aversion to the change will wear away with time."

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hoppess and son Coulter, of Hillsboro, are Thanksgiving day guests of Mrs. J. W. Coulter. Mr. Hoppess will return home tomorrow but Mrs. Hoppess will remain for a longer visit.

KENTUCKY GOBBLER WHIPPED TEXAS BIRD

(By Associated Press)
Washington, Nov. 24.—President Wilson's prospective Thanksgiving feast was temporarily in the balance today when the two turkeys sent for the event began a battle for supremacy back of the White House. One was that sent by the Chamber of Commerce of Cuero, Tex., and the other a large bird arriving yesterday from South Trimble farm, in Kentucky. The birds were released to pick up a little more weight from the yard.

The Cuero bird made a jump for his rival, landing well on the other's head, but through a quick recovery the Kentucky product came back with telling effect, and for a moment put the Cuero turkey out of commission. White House attendants separated the gamblers, both bleeding as the result of the assaults. They are now in separated inclosures.

WOMAN'S CLUB NOTES.

The meeting of the Woman's club on Wednesday was unusually interesting owing to the fact that the club was so well represented at the 23rd annual convention of the T. E. W. L. luncheon and made over style show, late artistic musical on Fine Arts Evening, the Press Dinner, and many other social features provided by the San Antonio club women. Mrs. J. C.
